RUM FLEET PLAYS HIDE AND SEEK IN CHASE OFF COAST

Uncle Sam Wins First Engagement; One Launch Tied Up at Philadelphia

GANGSTERS COMBINE

Five Mobs Reported to Be Working the Operation Together

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 28.—(INS)—A rum fleet of seven ships, each loaded with liquor, wines and other exhilarating beverages for the city's New Year parties, is playing a game of hide and seek with the United States Coast Guard off the New Jersey coast.

Uncle Sam won the first engagement with the rum fleet and as a result, a trim 45-foot launch, loaded with 382 cases of liquor, was tied up at Philadelphia today, under the watchful eyes of customs agents.

The seven boats represent the combined resources of five bands of New Jersey gangsters. Federal agents have learned. Desiring to stave off the ravages of competition with each other, the five mobs were reported to have invited a prominent New York gangster to superintend the business for one final "killing" before the new year.

Each of the seven "mother" ships is supplied with at least one speed boat. The lighter craft are loaded during the day and at night, obscured by darkness, fog and clouds, are sent out to wiggle through the Coast Guard patrol. If successful, they land their cargoes in hide-aways somewhere in the inaccessible creeks near Marcus Hook or Chester or on the New Jersey side, Coast Guardsmen have learned.

A Coast Guard seaplane, scouting the coastal waters, saw the small boat being loaded Monday afternoon. At night, under a cover of heavy fog it tried to break through the guard. Searchlights came into play, flares were sent up, radio brought the heavy Coast Guard tugs to the scene and after a shot was fired across the rum runner's bow, the swift little craft gave up. Three men aboard were arrested. They gave their names as John Jansen, 38; Albert Ackley, 32, and John Gulberg, all of Wildwood, N. J.

FALLSINGTON

Mr. and Mrs. Watson Hibbs, of near Pittsburgh, are spending the holidays with Mr. Hibbs' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Hibbs.

The Girls Friendly Society met at the home of Miss Alberta Satterthwaite on Friday evening. The next meeting will be held at the home of Miss Katharine Champion.

William W. Frederick announces the engagement of his daughter, Louise, to William Howard Higgins, son of Mrs. Louise Higgins, of Trenton. The date of the wedding will be announced later. Both Miss Frederick and Mr. Higgins were formerly residents of Fallsington.

Miss Elisabeth Lovett and brother, Robert, and Miss Alice Bacon, all students of Westtown Friends School, are home for the holidays.

The Girl Reserves, of Fallsington, filled Christmas stockings, and took them to the children of McKinley Hospital.

Christmas carols were sung around the community tree on the Meeting House grounds on Christmas Eve.

Thomas H. Smith, formerly of Fallsington, but of late years of Morris Heights, died on Friday morning, at the home of his sister, Mrs. Mary F. Dunn, Morris Heights, after a long illness. Had he lived until today, the 27th, he would have been 80 years old. He retired from the blacksmith trade at Fallsington, 20 years ago, and for the past four years had lived in Morris Heights. He was unmarried and leaves two sisters, Mrs. Dunn and Mrs. Annie T. O'Brien, of Trenton, and two brothers, John L. and William D. Smith, of Trenton. The funeral was held Monday morning, from the home of his sister, Mrs. Dunn, at 8 o'clock. Requiem high mass was celebrated at Holy Trinity Church, Morrisville, at nine o'clock. Interment was in St. Mark's Cemetery, Bristol.

NOT TO EXACT SALES BILL

Washington, D. C., Dec. 28.—Congress will not enact a general sales bill in the present "lame duck" session, Representative Rainey, of Illinois, Democratic leader of the House declared emphatically today. All revenue legislation except continuation of the first Federal gasoline tax and the bill for revenue from beer will go over to the anticipated special session, he said. The bubble of a beer, budget-balancing tax bill was tricked when dispatches from Albany said Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt is opposed to a general manufacturers' excise tax.

"There will be no tax bill in this session," said Rainey. "A sales tax could not be passed at this time and there is no other method of taxation that would not meet more opposition."

LOOT DRESS SHOP

Philadelphia, Dec. 28.—Thieves early today looted the dress shop where Rose Allen is employed of new dresses valued at about $1200. Rose Allen was the principal figure in the trial at Norristown where her brother, Edward H. B. Allen was acquitted in the slaying of Francis Donaldson, 3rd, her sweetheart.

Miss Allen had an apartment two floors above the dress shop but she told police she did not hear the robbers. The girl has been estranged from her family since the trial. Clarence Wright, a milkman, told police he saw a man armed with a pistol standing guard outside the store while three other bandits were at work in the rear. As soon as he reached a safe distance away, he notified police.

ASK RATE CONTINUANCE

Washington, D. C., Dec. 28.—The nation's railroads today asked the Interstate Commerce Commission to continue in effect, after March 1st, next, the Emerson freight rate under the so-called 15 per cent rate case. They also asked the Commission to eliminate the requirement providing that revenue derived be put into a fund from which loans can be made to weak roads in order to meet interest charges. The plight of the railroads was presented by Dr. Julius H. Parmelee, director of the Bureau of Railway Economics.

MAN BURNS TO DEATH

Pittsburgh, Dec. 28.—One man was burned to death and three firemen were injured here today when fire razed the top floor of a Seventh Avenue hotel in the heart of downtown Pittsburgh. Scores of other hotel guests escaped or were led to safety through smoke filled corridors. Identity of the victim was not immediately established. His body was badly burned. Police believe he was overcome by smoke in his room on the top floor.

TO BUILD FRAMEWORK OF ECONOMIC LEGISLATION

Congressional Democrats Make Move Toward Such Broad Program

DRASTIC ECONOMY

By William S. Neal
(U. S. Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28.—(INS)—Congressional Democrats today moved to build the framework of a broad program of economic legislation in anticipation of a special session of Congress after March 4.

Mindful the party will assume control of the government in 66 days, the Democratic leaders in both Senate and House disclosed their intention of using the present "lame duck" session for preparatory work.

While efforts will be made to complete some of the legislation before Governor Roosevelt is inaugurated, there is little expectation that prohibition, farm relief, currency or even tax legislation can be accomplished by that time.

The Democratic program as at present outlined includes drastic economy, balancing of the budget by taxation if necessary, a study of currency expansion, debtor relief, farm relief and removal of international trade barriers through tariff reform.

Senator Harrison of Mississippi, Democratic leader on the Senate Finance Committee, will introduce a resolution authorizing the committee to make a broad study of the economic situation.

"We have offered this bill and that," said Harrison. "We have groped for three years in economic despair. At most of the measures passed, have been merely sedatives."

"Tess of the Storm Country" To Be Feature at Grand

With the coming of "Tess of the Storm Country" to the Grand Theatre for three nights beginning tonight, the army of Gaynor-Farrell fans will see their favorites in what is said to be the most exciting and dramatic offering they have yet made and a picture very different from any of their previous vehicles.

The story deals with the hectic adventures of a sea-captain's daughter who comes to live ashore for the first time in her life.

With its opening sequences aboard the Captain's schooner and the picturesque settings of the shore scenes, the production adds a scenic realism to its swift-moving story. Miss Gaynor's work as the fiery and independent fisher-girl and Farrell's performance as the carefree youngster who encounters love for the first time, are reported to rank among the stars' finest portrayals.

Appeal To Musicians To Join Fathers' Ass'n. Orchestra

Postpone Church Play By Stealing Costumes

DOYLESTOWN, Dec. 28.—Thieves broke into St. Peter's Lutheran Church at Hilltown, near here, and stole enough costumes that were purchased to be used in an amateur theatrical production to postpone the show for one night. Some collection money found in a chest in the church was also stolen.

State police are investigating.

BUS DRIVER STEERS VEHICLE INTO FIELD TO PREVENT CRASH

Field Was Water-Soaked and Two Wreckers Hauled Bus Out

NO ONE WAS INJURED

Wheel Leaves Ham Truck and Hams Are Spilled About

When a big Greyhound bus with 24 passengers aboard left the Lincoln Highway and ploughed into a water-soaked field, it required two wreckers and 50 feet of wire cable to extricate it. The driver of the bus drove his machine out into the field rather than have a rear-end collision with a car directly ahead of him. No one was injured and no arrests were made.

Raymond W. Stirling, 32, of Philadelphia, bus operator, swerved his cumbersome vehicle with its human cargo over an eight-foot embankment and continued a half 100 feet into the field, which had been turned into a small lake by the rain, when the mishap occurred. According to Stirling, a machine driven by Jacob W. Silber, 51, of New York, suddenly slowed down ahead of him and caused him to brush the rear fender of the car with his bus, as he swerved off the highway to avoid a rear-end smash-up.

The accident occurred as both vehicles were proceeding down South Langh

FREE PRESS INDISPENSABLE

Repeated and serious inroads have been made in the last few years upon the right of a free press as guaranteed under the constitution. Public officials and lawmakers are constantly approaching the abridgement of editorial criticism and censorship of news. There have been many court decisions in contravention to the spirit and letter of the rule laid down by the nation's founders.

Some judicial rulings have been entirely inexplicable. Often, however, the courts have voided legislation designed to curb the freedom of the press. Where the press has been in the right it has usually won out in the end.

Modern editorial comment is much more restrained than was once the case. Only a generation or so ago an editor's pen was not considered effective unless it was dipped in vitrol, and many editorial pages were sustained by no right other than the willingness of the editor to defend his opinions physically. Today there should certainly be no restraining hand upon the right of a newspaper to speak plainly without malice, on any public question, and to criticize public officials for dereliction of duty.

One shudders to think what would happen in some of our courts and in many public offices if the politicians, who would muzzle and control the press, could have their way. There has been graft and corruption, and the only reason there hasn't been more is because of a wholesome fear of the public press.

A GOOD ARGUMENT

For the last three years the world has expected much in the way of economic security and found only insecurity. Now, standing on the pinnacle of a departing year and viewing the panorama of a new year spreading out before it, the world expects but little and may receive much. Such is fate! If it were different, we would all be millionaires. Paupers are numerous because most people invariably guess wrong in business and financial matters.

The eleventh hour of 1932 is different from that of the three preceding years in one respect only. All were alike in offering anything but bright prospects, but whereas before no one anticipated anything but the best all now are prepared for the worst while hoping for something better.

Though there has been an upturn in business and the likelihood of even greater gains in 1933 is strong, business leaders are making no wild claims for the new year. And yet they now have more on which to base prosperity predictions than they had to support their previous auguries. They have merely removed those deceptive rose-colored glasses.

Economic revolutions break when least expected. No one predicted the collapse of the last three years; none can fix the hour of the return to normality.

Optimism has returned. Burglars are breaking into places of business again.

Bavarians boast of enjoying the best beer in the world. Any beer drinker could.

SYNOPSIS

The smug little town of Navestock jolted on, rustily, clumsily, contented to jog along in a rut, resenting the interference of anyone who sought to change its mode of living. The people, therefore, were very antagonistic toward young Dr. John Wolfe, assistant to the town's blundering old Dr. Threadgold, when he tried to better conditions. Wolfe, stunned at the unsanitary conditions he finds everywhere, prepares a map showing the unhealthy districts. Mrs. Threadgold comes upon the map and considering Wolfe's researches "gross disloyalty and underhand spying," suggests that he be warned to discontinue or be discharged. Wolfe's one inducement to keep fighting is the friendship and encouragement of lovely and vivacious Jess Maseall. Wolfe shows Dr. Threadgold the dangerous germs he found in the well-water of a house where there is a case of diphtheria. The narrow-minded Threadgold, afraid to face facts and fearing Wolfe may usurp his position, resents the younger man's "interference." Wolfe warns of a terrible calamity should typhoid fever or cholera strike Navestock. Not wishing to appear superior, Wolfe turns over his findings to Threadgold to do with as he pleases. Later, the old doctor tells his wife a convincing tale of how he put Wolfe in his place. She urges him to burn Wolfe's papers. Discouraged and longing for someone to talk to, Wolfe visits Jess, who urges him to stay and fight. Then, gazing into each other's eyes, they are strangely embarrassed. Josiah Crabbe, the one inhabitant of Navestock who has the courage to live up to his convictions and is hated for it, is keenly interested in Wolfe.

CHAPTER TWENTY-NINE

It happened that week that Dr. Threadgold received a number of personal calls from various influential men in Navestock. They did not come to consult him about their health, nor did they confess that they were perturbed about their pockets. They came one at a time and at intervals of a day or so, to sit in Dr. Threadgold's capacious leather chair, and lodge complaints, each after his fashion.

Old Hubbard, grocer and haberdasher, was the first, with his head like a big white bladder of lard. He was nervous and a little apologetic, and perspired excuses and explanations, and commented on the heat. "You must excuse me, Dr. Threadgold, sir, but I really can't put up with it any longer. Here's my tenants grumble, sir, and setting people talking. Of course if you, sir, like to suggest any alterations in those cottages of mine, sir, that's a very different matter. I should be proud, sir, and obliged. But this inquisitive, masterful young man, sir; I really can't put up with it."

Two more tradesmen followed Mr. Hubbard—Butler, the butcher, whose slaughter-house was an abomination; and Harrington, the dairyman, who kept four cows in a dirty stable at the back of his house in Bridge Street.

"Come down yourself, sir, and look over my place. Why, it is clean whitewashed all through last month. I'm not going to have this chap of yours sniffing round my premises. He ain't got the ways and manners of a gentleman."

Later in the week Mr. Zachary Wilks strolled in and treated Threadgold to a quarter of an hour's thin cynicism. Wilks was a little, acid man, who had a knack of setting people's teeth on edge.

"My dear Threadgold, I thought I should like to ask you whether you hold yourself responsible for all the ingenious inquisitiveness of this assistant of yours. Really, a most pushing and enthusiastic it is done."

"If you can't show your old friends and patients a little more consideration, we shall go elsewhere for our physic," thundered Turrell.

young man. Expect to find him in my scullery any day. Of course, if he has your instructions I have nothing more to say. But I don't like it. I don't pretend to like it. It will spoil our good feeling, you know. One does not like to quarrel with a man who has brought all one's youngsters into the world."

Jasper Turrell followed these lesser men, reserving his thunder until the last. "Look here, Threadgold, we have known each other a good many years; what do you mean by inflicting us with a meddlesome cub like this chap Wolfe? I don't take it kindly. What's more, I'm not going to stand it. If you can't show your old friends and patients a little more consideration, 'confound it—we shall go elsewhere for our physic."

These successive attacks had worked Montage Threadgold into a state of intense irritability. He was furious with Wolfe, and with a weak man's fury that bubbles and chafes in the pot of its own cowardice. Turrell's bullying tone brought the little man to boiling-point.

"Let me tell you, Mr. Turrell, that this young man has caused me infinite irritation. There is no need for any gentleman in Navestock to dictate to me. I have tried patience and advice, but without result. Mr. Wolfe is going."

"Then you are a wise man, Threadgold. The fellow is doing you a great deal of harm."

"My dear sir, I know."

"He will smash up your practice if you keep him another six months."

The brewer left Threadgold in a state of simmering excitement. He rushed upstairs, hesitated, rushed down again, ascended once more, and burst into the drawing-room, where his wife sat reading at one of the windows.

"Sophia, I can stand this no longer. I'm not going to have Wolfe here another day."

"My dear Montage, don't get so excited about a mere jackanapes!"

"I hate and loathe the very sound of his name."

"Then do what I tell you; get rid of him at once."

"Exactly—quite so. And as to those papers of his—"

"What! You haven't burned them yet?"

"No."

"Bring them up here. I'll see that it is done."

And done it was, in the black Georgian grate of the Prospect House drawing-room. Mrs. Sophia herself removed the pile of white paper shavings, and the big yellow fan that served as a screen. Wolfe's statistics disappeared in smoke, and the map remained as so much flustering ash.

John Wolfe had had a long morning, and had dropped in to eat a lonely meal in the Turkey-carpeted dining-room. He had a country round that afternoon.

There was the freshness of falling dew in the air when Wolfe rode back beside the windings of the Wraith, and saw on the distant hillside the dark shapes of the Moor Farm cypresses. He had seen Jess but once since that hour in the orchard, and she had been a little shy of him, yet with a frank shyness that was very alluring. She had smiled less, looked at him less intently, and spoken as though words had come to have a new and deeper meaning. There had been just a flash of pride for him in her eyes, something dearer than sympathy.

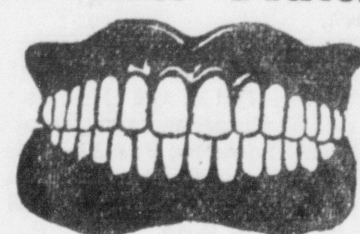

Wolfe had found her a name by which he could name her to himself. "The Maid of Honor," that was what he called Jess. He looked at her and thought of her as a man of the spear and sword thought of the one woman who was his "Lady." She spread courage and cleanliness and strength about him. No mean thing could come out of his heart or mouth. "To the uttermost, and without fear," that had been her message.

As John Wolfe rode through Navestock he could not help being struck by the quaintness and beauty of the old town. The calm of a summer evening lay over it, and the threads of blue smoke from the chimneys disappeared in a golden haze. The red brick became a deeper, richer red. Casements caught the sunset. Trees and chimneys stood out against the western sky. Here and there, down passageways and narrow streets, Wolfe caught a glimpse of the river, black under the shadows of black roofs and gables. For an instant the little town was transfigured like an unclean and crippled beggar carried suddenly into Paradise.

THE GATEWAY to SUCCESS . . .

Success is something all who possess pride and ambition long for, and earnestly hope to attain.

For some that success seems to come easily, for others the grind is hard — with that desired result ever as far away as in the beginning.

Do some have a magic power by which they draw attainment to them, many ask.

"No," we answer. Those who gain real success in affairs of this life must ever be on the alert for opportunities. And opportunities come in so many forms. One opportunity, and a sure gateway to the Land of Success, is through the Courier pages. Read its classified columns for small successes and big. Many dollars are waiting about, ready to be earned by the ambitious ones. The display advertisements prove ways of saving those dollars and other dollars once they are earned.

DUAL CELEBRATION STAGED BY JUNIORS, TRAVEL CLUB HOME

Second Anniversary of Group Marked at Christmas Party

The Junior Travel Club held a meeting in the Travel Club Home last evening. After regular business, the members enjoyed a Christmas party and also celebrated the second anniversary of the club.

Miss Anna Hawkes was hostess and arranged this interesting programme: tap snowball chorus, interpreted by Misses Winifred Tracy, Louise Lawrence and Janice Wagner; vocal solos, Miss Marie Wurster; French doll dance, Miss Winifred Tracy; parody on the manner of conducting meetings of the club today and 30 years from now, Miss Hawkes.

Various games were played, and refreshments of ice cream and cake served. A birthday cake with two candles was the center of attraction.

Sixteen members and their advisor, Mrs. Roy Tracy, enjoyed this pleasant evening.

PARIS RULES MODE FOR CHILDREN IN SLIM SILHOUETTE

By Alice Langelier
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)
PARIS—(INS)—Teen and tot models are terribly tiny this season, imitating mother's own and following her slim and chic silhouette.

Trim little frocks of silk or wool have their necklines pulled way up high and the waistline marked where it ought to be but, unfortunately, where only the teens and the tots can wear it. Michelle is showing one of black crepe trimmed with fluffy sleeves and yoke of white embroidery.

A popular loose coat for the young Miss comes in dark blue velveteen lined with dark blue wool. It has velvet patch pockets and buttons right up to a collarless neckline.

Cardigan suits are increasingly popular for the tiny tots' indoor wear.

Prune, deep claret color and nigger-brown are favorites for frocks and coats for the tot from 8 to 12 years. Raspberry-red and white checkered tweed makes an attractive suit with white crepe de chine blouse buttoning on to the skirt and edged with tweed at neck and wrists.

Simple tweed coats with either a velvet collar to match the velvet beret or a stitched one are seen on smart children.

For the older sister Chanel makes a lovely black velvet afternoon frock with round black velvet collar and tie and patch pockets on the gored skirt. A sleeveless pullover of Irish lace crocheted with silver threads, fits close about the neck and there is a black velvet belt at the waistline.

RUSTLING FROCKS, AND QUILTED SKIRT IN NEW PARIS MODE

By Alice Langelier
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

PARIS—Rustling frocks and quilted skirts standing out like the frilled and frivolous petticoats of olden times, have been restored to the ballroom for this winter. They are made on most modern lines and not as period fashions for the picturesque few only.

A striking model is in zenania taffeta, a fabric with quilted surface like the stuff for dressing-gowns. It stands out from the hips like the stiff petticoats worn by Georgian ladies.

A rustling black taffeta gown has an immense hemline worthy of the Victorians and there is ruching as well at the hem, shoulders and waist, together with puff sleeves of the picture-frock style.

Patou seems determined to make the waistline go lower. He does not exaggerate it, but manages, cuts and trims the tops of his dresses so as to suggest the long movement. For the evening he uses plain satin, plain and figured net.

Lelong puts bright sleeveless waistcoats, sometimes hand-knitted, with his new blouses. The shoulders of woolen dresses fit closely; there are no seams, the back has a wide line. An evening dress of black silk crepe figured with silver butterflies is worn with a scarlet wrap trimmed with black fox. Flowers are worn with

"HIBS" DROP CAGE TILT BY CLOSE DECISION

A big upset occurred in the Bristol Basketball League last night. After winning five straight, the Hibernians dropped a close decision to the Third Ward team, 35-31. It was the first defeat of the season for the "Hibs."

The Warders were out to beat the "Hibs" last night and went at it strong. They took the lead after three minutes of playing and never relinquished it. At the first half whistle the score was 19-11.

DEMPSEY MAY CONDUCT A NEW SPORTS ARENA

By Davis J. Walsh
(I. N. S. Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—(INS)—Coincident with a report that Col. John S. Hammond, ousted official of Madison Square Garden, would head a rival syndicate intending to run against the Garden on a cut-throat basis came a statement from Jack Dempsey today that he was taking up permanent headquarters here and had under consideration an offer to conduct a new sports arena in the Times Square District. Dempsey further announced himself as "a national promoter" who would step in and promote anywhere the hook up might seem attractive, but added that New York henceforth would be his major field of operations.

He had just finished a midnight telephone talk with George Getz, Chicago millionaire, who, he says, wants him to bring the Schmeling-Baer fight there for the world's fair next summer. They will confer further on the matter here on January 4, he added, at which time he will inform the Chicago man that a guaranteed seat sale must be forthcoming or the fight will not.

Another factor to be considered is the Illinois law, which limits non-championship fights to ten rounds, but, according to Dempsey's version of the telephone conversation, Getz assured him that steps were being taken to rectify the situation. Meantime, the inference was that Dempsey really hoped to put the fight on here at one of the ball parks as the first step in his proposed campaign to take the play away from the garden here.

"When I get established with this fight, it will be time to talk about other promotions," said he. "However, I don't mind saying that I've been propositioned to step in as the head of a proposed new arena that will go after the fight game indoors in a way that the Garden is not liable to like. There's room for another arena, particularly a better one. And if we go for this thing, it will be a better one."

Dempsey would not discuss a possible connection between his announcement and the rumor about Hammond. But unless the town is full of rival syndicates and "new gardens" are to grow in every doorway, the implication is fairly strong. In other words, if Dempsey and Hammond aren't together, they'd better get there.

Y. M. A. TRIUMPHS IN CONTEST WITH I. O. O. F.

It looked mighty bad for the Y. M. A. basketball five last night on the Italian Mutual Aid court. The Odd Fellows were in a playing mood and outplayed the Y's but missed too many shots from close to the basket with the result that the Young Men's Association registered a 32-29 victory.

There was no doubt to the fact that the Fellows outplayed the league leaders and deserved a better fate than was accorded them. They had possession of the sphere during most of the game and had twice as many shots as the Y. M. A. crew but on close shots the Odds were failures. They would hit the rim but the ball would always come on the outside.

WOOLSTON'S GUESTS

FALLSINGTON, Dec. 28.—Mr. Headley and Amos Woolston were Christmas dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Isaiah Woolston.

To Build Framework Of Economic Legislation

"We are not going to pull ourselves out of our economic trouble until something is done to stabilize foreign exchanges and to increase commodity prices."

Two important economy surveys already are under way, one being conducted by the Senate Economy Committee, the other by the joint committee on veterans' legislation.

A study of the government's fiscal affairs will be opened by the House Ways and Means Committee on Jan. 3, while a sub-committee of the House Appropriations Committee has been appointed to consider means of cutting the indefinite appropriations.

Prohibition legislation, including repeal submission and the beer bill, will be pushed in the Senate but Democratic leaders have about abandoned hope of real action during the "lame duck" session.

While Democrats disclaim any knowledge of Gov. Roosevelt's ideas on a special session, they fully expect him to call one. Harrison indicated the call might be postponed for several months.

Gov. Roosevelt to summon Congress Speaker John N. Garner expects about April 1.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.
Well, it's a woman's privilege. Claudette Colbert has decided to re-sign with Paramount after all.

For a few days there, it looked as if the French star was going through with her threat to break away, but Paramount officials finally have persuaded her otherwise. Withdrawal of a request that she take a salary cut is believed to have been an important consideration.

The little dispute proved one thing to everybody's satisfaction. Leaving Paramount wouldn't mean anything for Claudette. Half a dozen studios wanted her. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer proffered a long term contract. Universal said money was no object if she would sign for one picture.

None of this, of course, was lost on Paramount. Proof is they came into line.

It may sound phoney but it actually happened the other evening in a neighborhood movie theater.

Band-leader Stanley Smith and Winona Love, super exponent of the hula, were rehearsing for a personal appearance. Smith struck up a sensuous Hawaiian tune and Miss Love, on the stage, began to dance. Her body was poetry of rhythmic motion, her arms, first one and then the other, undulated to the music.

But there was a wrong note. No beam of light came down from the balcony.

"Spotlight!" someone cried, and then again.

But still no beam. Finally the dance was over and the house manager shouted: "What happened to that spotlight?"

Came an answering shout from above. "Well, every time I tried to focus it, that dame would point in the other direction."

HOLLYWOOD PARADE.

Tomorrow will see the finish of Janet Gaynor's picture and friends say she will slip away from Hollywood for a while. . . . Johnny Farrow has been taking Constance Cummings to the Club New Yorker

. . . and Lupe Velez was dancing there the same evening with Johnny Weissmuller. The little paprika still denies anything serious between her and movieland's favorite swimmer. "Johnny is just one of my many friends," she says. "Does no question of my taking him back. When I sent him away he was a married man and I wouldn't walk to the corner with a married man. Now, he is free, so why I should not see him?"

Sir Guy Standing is so dignified it makes it all the funnier. I mean the invariable habit of hotel telephone operators to connect his callers to the cigar stand. . . . Influenced, no doubt, by Fifi Dorsay's preference for their countrymen, a group of Argentine showmen have offered the sprightly gal a personal appearance tour in South America. I think she'll stay here though. Incidentally, Fifi is to impersonate Anna Held in the next Domino Club broadcast. . . . Filmdom's ranks are still shot by Flu, but some of the sufferers are returning to the lots. John Gilbert is one, Jack Conway another.

Cinemaland will receive a visit from Ken Murray over the New Year week-end. . . . Warner Oland, on the other hand, is taking his wife back to New York and later to Massachusetts where they have a home. . . . Minna Gombell praises the sense of humor of a certain author who has had a protracted run of hard luck.

Says he: "When I was a young fellow I never could stay in one place for long. Lately it's been the same way."

The paternalistic, motion picture academy of arts and sciences has its research committee trying to persuade all studios to use the same tint of bright lights. Reason is, the poor actors now have to have several different shades of dress shirts. White doesn't always photograph white, you know.

DID YOU KNOW—

That all members of Lewis Stone's family, for five generations, were born in Worcester, Mass.?

« Pictorial Review of March of Events of 1932 » »

Just a year ago, we were all busy wondering what 1932 was going to bring forth. Let us flip back the pages of Father Time's diary to refresh our memory on the biggest news "breaks" of the year. (2) The unforgettable outrage that stunned the entire world when the baby son of Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh was kidnapped on March 1st, and later was found murdered, is among the most poignant and shocking news stories of all time. (1) Even the dark shadow of another World War that loomed over Shanghai, China, when it was invaded by Japanese troops on January 24, lost significance when compared to the dastardly outrage perpetrated on the child of a universally-beloved hero. (3) The disappearance of Colonel Raymond Robbins, dry leader, on September 3, and his subsequent discovery on November 18, masquerading as Raymond Rogers, in Whittier, N. C. (4) Amelia Earhart, America's lady-bird, landed in Ireland, May 21, after making the first solo flight across the Atlantic ever made by a woman. (5) President Paul Doumer of France fatally shot, May 6, by Russian emigre in Paris. (6) Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York and Speaker John Nance Garner of Texas, running-mates on the Democratic ticket, meet at Peekskill, N. Y., to plan campaign. (7) Mysterious shooting of Smith Reynolds, tobacco heir, at Winston-Salem, N. C., July 1st, and subsequent indictment of his widow, Libby Holman Reynolds, former "torch-singer," charged with his murder. (8) The riots that marked the forcible eviction of the Bonus Army from the national capital, July 28, when troops were used with bayonet and gas bomb to expel the veterans. (9) Mayor James J. Walker on the witness stand before Samuel Seabury, May 26. This marked the beginning of the road that ended with the New York Mayor's resignation on September 1st. (10) The celebrated "honor-slaying" case in Honolulu in which Lieutenant Thomas Massie, Mrs. Granville Fortescue, his mother-in-law; E. J. Lord and Albert E. Jones, U. S. N. enlisted men, were tried for the slaying of Joseph Kahawai, one of five Hawaiians accused of a criminal attack on Mrs. Thalia Massie, wife of the naval officer. (11) The trapping for income tax evasion, of Al Capone, Chicago gangster czar, and his entrance to Atlanta penitentiary, May 3rd, to begin an 11-year sentence. (12) Samuel Insull, Chicago utilities czar, whose mighty power empire crashed all around him and drove him into seeking refuge in Greece to avoid trial on charges of grand larceny.
